government. The boat was bound from New Orleans. The submarine ordered the passengers and crew to take the boats and then fired fourteen shots at her from her cannon. Twelve hit above the water line and the boat was sinking. While she was sinking the boat the submarine was sunk from a shell fired at a great range by a British man o'war. The crew and passengers then returned the Chancellor and she was able to reach port. Fifteen of the crew were killed by the firing.

Male Owner Wanted War.

"I met the owner of the mules, an American, in London, and we stayed at the same hotel. He seemed to be under the impression that the United States should declare war on Germany at once because he lost eighteen head of mules by the attack of the submarine. Finally we had a few hot words on the subject when he declared the United States was afraid to fight Germany. This is the impression that the British seem to have on this subject. They sneer at our foreign policy and one of the most popular songs sung in the music halls of London is 'We Are Too Proud to Fight.' The British generally believe the United States should declare war on Germany and that we are afraid to go to war. Public sentiment in England is against the United States. I think it is even more bitter than the feeling Germany generally has for us.

The Zeppelin Raid on London.

"On the night of September 3, I was awakened by the German Zeppelin raid on London. It is reported that three Zeppelins participated in the attack, but I only saw one and I have never talked to any person who said they saw three at one time. The Zeppelin is about 600 feet in length and when twenty large searchlights were played on it we could see it distinctly from the streets. The big crossing the English channel I saw a German submarine hooked in a wire net by a British trawler. There was a large crowd around the net trying to touch the submarine and its crew. An American, Mr. Smith, who carries the American messages to Germany told me this is the fifteenth one he has seen landed by the nets. In England they claim from fifty to a hundred submarines have been captured in this manner.

"The British when they captured the submarines at first tried to press them into use. But they were unable to learn the mechanism of the craft for when they dived the submarines never came to the surface again and this plan has been abandoned. The war around the war zone and the English channel is literally filled with warships and aerial craft of the British government.

"When a passenger boat crosses the English channel it is piloted by a warship which crosses in a zig zag course to prevent the craft striking mines. A grey colored aircraft also hovers overhead watching for foreign craft.

No Famine in Germany.

"Germany is not facing the famine that the British report. In fact they have an abundance of foodstuffs and the crops this summer have been unusually large. Meals are very cheap and the cost of living has not advanced as much as one would generally believe. There is a shortage of rubber and tin containers. There are no automobiles in use today in Germany, only those of the royal families and the ambulances and armored cars. The rubber tires have all been confiscated.

"The metals of families has been listed by the government who announced its intention of confiscating it if necessary but when I was there this was not being done.

"You can get a whole grouse and side dishes at the best hotels and eating houses for 15 cents or in the country the same meal can be had for 40 cents. Deer meat, wild boar and other dishes are sold at the same price, together with the side dishes.

"I saw during my trip to Berlin something like 150,000 German troops marching southward. I think they were going to Austria's assistance and so did that there were many times this number on the march. I saw 25,000 troops embark on a train for the front. As they marched down the street singing patriotic songs they were accompanied by wives, sweethearts and sisters. They were literally decorated with flowers and flowers of flowers draped their train and everyone was wildly enthusiastic and cheering them and giving them words of encouragement.

No Enthusiasm in England.

"It's different in England. They won't enlist there and there is no enthusiasm. I saw several hundred handsome looking Britishers marching through the streets from Leicester square singing 'It's a Long Way to Tipperary.' On the side, the walk never even glanced at them and there was none of the enthusiasm that was displayed in Germany. They were singing 'Good Bye Leicester Square,' and were leaving it and no one as much as give them a smile or encouraging cheer.

"I visited the British prison camp in London and the German prison camp at Rhinow where there are some 4,200 prisoners. The claims of both Germany and England that their prisoners are being treated in a barbarous manner is unfounded. Both countries are treating their prisoners well, they have good shelter, plenty of food and good clothing. Even they are allowed to buy anything they want and can receive food and money from friends and relatives at home.

"These detention camps are regular little cities themselves and have stores, hotels, amusements such as theaters, cricket, ball and other games for the prisoners. They elect their own officers and are also under military rule.

"When I was going to Germany up the Holstein coast I could hear the cannonading that told of the battle progressing some twenty miles away.

BALKAN STATES ARE DEFINITELY COMMITTED TO PART IN WAR

The night passed quietly on the remainder of the front.

"Squadrons of French airplanes have thrown down a very large number of projectiles on the railroad stations and the railroad lines behind the German front, particularly at the junction of Valenciennes-Annulme.

"During the past night gun mounted on aeroplanes were successful in bombarding the German lines."

GERMAN OFFICIAL REPORT SAYS ENGLISH LOSE GROUND

Berlin, Oct. 2 (via London, 8 p. m.)—An attempt by the British to retake the ground east north of Loos was defeated with a heavy loss, the war office announced today.

Several French attacks were repulsed and a number of prisoners were taken.

The text of the statement follows: "Western theater. By a counter attack the English last night endeavored to retake the land north of Loos which was wrested from them during the fighting in the last few days, but the attempt failed with sanguinary losses.

"French attacks southwest of Arras, east of Souchez and also north of Neuville were repulsed.

"The number of prisoners taken by our troops in the section covered by the French-English attack, now has been increased to 136 officers and 5,642 men. We also captured 26 machine guns.

"In the Champagne the French attacked during the afternoon east of Aubervie over a wide front. The attack failed. Only at one point did the enemy penetrate our position, our troops went forward in a counter attack and took one officer and 20 men. The remainder of the soldiers who penetrated the position were killed.

"French attacks north of LeMouill, northwest of Villers-Tourle, were repulsed. In repulsing the attacks of the last few days northeast of LeMouill the twenty-fourth reserve regiment especially distinguished itself.

CULMINATION OF A CENTURY LONG CONFLICT IS AT HAND

Beginning of the End of Fight for Nation Wide Prohibition
Here, Declares Rev. Clarence True Wilson.

DISCUSSES COAT TAILS OF JOHN BARLEYCORN

Ringling Address by Widely Known Temperance Worker
Feature of Today's Conference Session.

A Ringling address upon "The Coat Tails of John Barleycorn," by Dr. Clarence True Wilson of Topeka, and the report of the committee on resolutions were the features of this morning's session of the first annual conference of the Methodist church in New Mexico at the Lead Avenue church. Dr. Wilson, who was unable to reach the city last night, delivered it with none the less vigor and interest this morning.

"We are reaching the culmination," he said, "of the century-long conflict between Christian civilization and the organized liquor traffic, and we stand on the mountain-top of vision and see the sunrise of victory. Every argument for the drink habit, and the liquor traffic has been successfully and finally answered. Every compromise and expedient that could be suggested has been tried and failed. The liquor traffic which could not be mended must now be ended. This work has got to be done by state for state along with the nation's capital, and the liquor traffic is under the wing of the federal government and no state alone can settle it. We must have federal prohibition embodied in the constitution of the United States.

"Because this is no local matter, but is the whole people's fight."

"Because this is the history of the great reforms that make political epochs in the nation's life."

"Because this is a national evil centering in Washington and reaching out thence to the ends of the earth."

"Because every battleship of our navy, every army division and every conscript of Christian nation has got to stand right on this subject."

"Because the trade is a matter of distilling and brewing and we need national power to cope with these national-embracing, trade in alcoholic stimulants coming into cash the vice, the appetites and even the social cravings of mankind."

"Because the alcohol traffic is dependent on intricate and complex and operates under federal protection. The national power that accepts distilling, poignancy, purity on the high seas, combination on distant islands, uprooted human slavery, drove the lotteries from Louisiana, smashed their ticket agents from the several states and their advertisements from the mails of the United States, must now be invoked to defend the American home from the an-American poison."

"I expect to live to see a dry United States and a dry world. Prohibition is coming everywhere. China prohibits it. Russia prohibits it. Norway has prohibited it. Iceland has banished all alcohol. England, Switzerland, Holland and France have destroyed almost the eighteen states in America have come destruction to the liquor traffic. A majority of eight in the lower house voted to submit the constitutional amendment to the several states, destroying the liquor traffic with one fell swoop. A fourth of the daily papers have espoused liquor advertising. The hospitals are cutting out alcohol as a medicine and big business has turned on the liquor traffic for a war unto death. The Church of Christ must get into this fight and lead."

ALBUQUERQUE CAR SYSTEM PASSES INTO LOCAL HANDS TODAY

City Electric Company, With George Roslington as President, Takes Over the Trolley System.

DANDY NEW CARS IN YARDS THIS MORNING

Four More Due to Arrive Monday From St. Louis and Will Go Into Service Immediately.

Albuquerque is to have a real street car system, with sure enough service all the time, first class track and number one equipment. The need and desire for a traction system was realized this morning when the City Electric company, with George Roslington as its president, took over the holdings of the Albuquerque Traction company, purchased yesterday at public sale by H. A. Jastro, representing the bond holders of the old company. The City Electric company is offered by Mr. Roslington as president, Lloyd Sturges as secretary and treasurer, and J. H. O'Reilly, E. L. Grose and J. W. Hesselton of Wagon Mount completing the board of directors. Mr. Jastro, president of the old Traction company, while he will be a bond holder of the new company, is not a stockholder and will not participate in the operation of the new company.

Coincident with the taking over of the trolley system by the new company its new equipment began to arrive today. Three of the new cars reached Albuquerque this morning at 4 o'clock and four more will be here Monday morning. All of these cars will go into service at once.

New Cars Are Dandies.

The new cars were built by the St. Louis Car company, one of the largest car building corporations in the country. They are of the very latest patterns and contain all the latest equipment and devices. The cars are of steel structure with some parts which make them very easy to ride in. They are painted a light orange color.

The cars are built on the passenger-enter system, similar to those used in the larger eastern cities. They are mounted on the latest springs and when in motion the cars are as easy riding as though one were on a Pullman coach of a railroad company.

The cars are equipped with easy-to-open windows which can be lowered during the summer and the cars resemble summer cars. In the winter they will be comfortably warm. They are electrically heated and contain the latest in lights.

One of the features of the new design is the safety renderer. This new device can be operated by the motorman as to prevent accidents. Persons who fail to get out of the way of the cars or step in front of them while they are in motion will be placed up by the renderer and with the experienced a little fall and not be injured.

Four other cars of similar pattern are due to arrive soon from the same company. The cars are now being completed by the City Electric company.

During the sessions of the conference, the members of the Spanish Epworth league for the first reception given to the pastors of the Old Albuquerque church.

Third, to the railroad companies for the reduction of fares to the different points.

Fourth, to our dear bishop, Francis J. McConnell for having organized us into an annual conference.

Fifth, to the two daily newspapers for having allowed us space in their columns for the daily sessions of our conference.

Sixth, to the families at both the Spanish and English congregations for the entertainment of the pastors at their homes.

VOTER RESPONSIBLE, JUSTICE
ROBERTS SAYS IN ADDRESS

Chief Justice Clarence J. Roberts of the state supreme court was the principal speaker at last night's meeting of the conference devoted to prohibition. Declaring that alcohol was responsible for a very large percentage of the crimes which are recorded in New Mexico courts, Justice Roberts asserted that the voters are the responsible parties. They can wipe out the influence of the saloon whenever they wish to cure it out, he said. Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts also spoke, asserting the scientific wrong in the use of alcohol.
